To County Infirmary

This afternoon the court went to the county infirmary to decide whether the tanks for the infirmary's water system should be put in the basement or buried outside. The new building is nearing completition and is expected to be ready for occupancy about October 1.

Yesterday afternoon the county judge heard several other reports of water damage to bridge and pleas for their restoration.

George Patterson, Monroe township trustee, told of work needed on a bridge over the Nodaway river west of Skidmore. The span, he said, had been twisted out of line by the swollen stream. He also told of a bridge which had fallen into the deep ditch it crossed at the Bosley place, four miles east and a half mile south of Skidmore.

Bruce Houston asked for immediate installation of a culvert at a point where water is cutting a ditch through the road and threatening to continue through his farm, three miles east and a mile south of Hopkins. He was accompanied by Frank Miller, a member of the Hopkins township board, who also told of work needed near the Henry Russell place.

Irvin Perry and John Whitten reported damage to several small bridges in the Workman Chapel neighborhood. To all the delegations the court made the same pledge, that emergency cases would be taken care of at once and roads kept open, and that other work would be done as speedily as funds were available.

ELEVEN DEAD IN N. Y. STORM

FIVE MISSING AND FIFTY KNOWN TO BE INJURED.

TRAINS ARE JAMMED

Those Unable To Return To City Last Night Pack Cars—Prominent Wall Street Lawyer Killed.

New York, Sept. 7.—At least eleven persons are known to be dead today and at least five others missing as a result of the terrific storm which late yesterday flooded parts of the city and suburbs and almost completely stopped traffic.

Fifty persons are known to have been injured. Trains, trolleys and subways were still jammed today bringing home those who spent the three day holiday in the country and were unable to return last night because of the storm.

The worst aspect of the storm occurred when the rushing waters caused a landslide in the Culver Cut of the B. M. T. subway lines, partially burying a train and throwing a loaded car into complete darkness. Two men leaped out of windows during the ensuing panic and were immediately killed when they came into contact with the third rail.

Ralph Crews, prominent Wall street lawyer, and a director in the National City Bank, was one of the victims of the storm. He was killed when an automobile in which he was riding skidded in the heavy rain and turned over.

Quilt From Pickering Sells for Big Price

W. P. F. A. Club's Donation Brings $781.50 at State Convention, to Be Used in Farm Club Work.

A farm quilt of red and white muslin made by the Pickering club of the Women's Progressive Farmers Association was presented at the annual convention of Farm Club held at Sedalia on September 1 to 3.

The pictures on the quilt represented farm products and were joined with fifty links in which the Missouri Farm Clubs' history was embroidered. There were 1,295 letters and 178 numbers.

The quilt was given to the state convention to be sold and the proceeds turned over to the state association for Farm Club work in Missouri, a part of which is to be sent for work in Nodaway county. It sold, with various donations, for $781.50, and was left with the state for display at next year's convention.

The Pickering club has seven members, with Mrs. I. C. Thompson as president.

BURLINGTON IN SERVICE AGAIN

ALL RAILROADS IN COUNTY RETURN TO NORMAL.

RIVER FALLS RAPIDLY

Road Which Was Under Water Is Dragged Today—Graham-Maitland Highway Passable.

With the work of reconstruction following closely in the wake of receding flood waters, railroad service in Nodaway County had returned to normalcy today.

For the first time since Friday night, the St. Joseph-Maryville-Creston branch of the Burlington planned to resume through passenger service this afternoon. The morning and noon trains did not run, but two local freights were operated through without mishap. The first passenger train will be the one south, leaving Maryville at 4:48 p. m. The train north, arriving in Maryville at 8:25, also will be operated.

In some places between Maryville and Barnard, the water still is two feet deep over the Burlington tracks, but the roadbed has been thoroughly inspected and repairs made where necessary. The repair work was done under the personal supervision of F. E. Haines, division superintendent at Creston, and was finished this morning. No work train was used, as all the needed material was on hand at or between Maryville and Barnard.

The Villisca branch of the Burlington, passing through Maitland, Skidmore, Quitman and Burlington Junction, resumed service yesterday, but the Tarkio branch from Creston remains blocked because of a bridge which has sunk several feet below the track level.

The Wabash reported service as usual, although trains are running somewhat late as the result of slow orders over "soft" track.

From Maitland to Graham, automobiles were able to get through for the first time since Thursday.

The 102 river here had fallen 6½ feet since yesterday morning, according to Carl Kissinger, in charge of the pumping station for the Maryville water system. At 2:30 o'clock this afternoon the river gauge stood at 13 feet. The receding water took with it a large portion of the bank near the pump house.

The road at this point, much of which was under water, was being dragged today.

Oh, Boy, How Much Is Fare to Atlantic City?

Trainload Of America's Prettiest Girls Arrive There For Big Pageant.

Atlantic City, Sept. 7.—A trainload of American beauties arrived here today. Beautiful blondes, brunettes and red heads, each eager to wear the crown of Miss America to be a feature of the Atlantic City pageant which opens this week. Ten thousand spectators crowded the station to feast on the sight.

There were seventy-three prize beauties aboard the special train from every section of the country. Only fifty-three can compete for the award, the others being ineligible for various technical reasons.

The beauties tripped daintily down the car steps through a spellbound crowd.

The Atlantic City flag and pageant banner were hoisted by Miss Fay Lanphier, California girl, the Miss America of 1925. The flagg staff snapped and the banner and flag fell. Miss Lanphier became hysterical and began weeping. They led her into a private room to regain her composure.

RUSSIA ONCE AGAIN THREAT

TURKEY'S HOPES MAY PROVOKE NEW LEAGUE CRISIS

MUST REVISE TREATY

Neutrality Clause in Russo-Turkish Treaty Won't Be Acceptable to League Members

Geneva, Sept. 7—With Turkey knocking at the door of the League of Nations, the spectre of soviet Russia is looming once more at Geneva.

Through Munir Bey, its representative at Berne, Turkey has indicated at several capitals its desire to join the League providing it receive assurance of a permanent seat in the Council. Great Britain, through diplomatic channels, has informed Turkey that an essential preliminary condition to her acceptance by the League is the revision of the Russo-Turkish treaty, particularly the neutrality clause that provides that Turkey remain neutral if Russia becomes involved in war, even though Russia be the aggressor.

Great Britain contends that this clause violated the new covenant inasmuch as if Russia should attack a member of the League, Turkey, as all other members, would be obligated to take steps against Russia.

The question of Germany's admission will not come before the general assembly formally before tomorrow, it is believed. Norway, leading the Scandinavian countries, has given indications that she may object to the program which has been laid down by the leaders of the League for the admission of Germany and the reorganization of the Council.

All the Scandinavian countries are anxious for Germany to join the League but they are inclined to feel that the reorganization of the Council is being too strongly coupled with Germany's entrance. Should this start a fight when it comes before the assembly, Germany's entrance might further be delayed.

Church Reforms Are Without Sponsorship

Measures Pigeon-Holed by Mexican Congress—Episcopate Demands All Rights and Liberties.

Mexico City, Sept. 7—The constitutional reforms proposed by the Catholic episcopate are pigeon-holed in Congress today because no deputy or Senator has been found who is willing to sponsor these proposals for reform.

The employes of the episcopate delivered these proposals to Congress and they were immediately tabled. The episcopate is now endeavoring to find some deputy who is willing to brave the displeasures of the government by bringing the measures before Congress.

The proposed reforms demand every right and liberty pertaining to the church.

"We demand liberty for all faiths," declared the episcopate's petition.

The proposed reforms would provide for free education, free religious belief, separation of church and state, freedom of the church to maintain charitable institutions and unrestrained opportunity for church officials to carry out their work.

REBELS FACE QUICK JUSTICE

SPANISH COURT MARTIALS ARE ORDERED.

SURVIVES A CRISIS

Mutinous Officers Surrender — Gen. Primo de Rivera Explains Situation Which Now Exists.

Madrid, Sept. 7.—Court martial of the leaders of the mutiny of artillery officers is already under way, Gen. Primo de Rivera announced to the International News Service this afternoon following a cabinet meeting presided over by the king. The mutiny, which threatened a political crisis, is now in hand, the premier said.

"Conditions are improving every minute," said the premier. "Court martials have already begun."

The cabinet authorized the minister of war to execute a decree dismissing artillery officers who were concerned in the mutiny. The decree dissolving the artillery corps is already drawn up but has not been signed by the king.

Editor's note—Spain has apparently surmounted another political crisis, the mutinous artillery officers having surrendered. In a special message to the International News Service, Gen. Primo de Rivera, Spanish minister, explains the situation in Spain as it now stands.

By Gen. Primo de Rivera, Spanish prime minister. Copyright 1926 by International News Service.

Madrid, Sept. 7.—The action of the artillery corps was a protest against a royal decree of June 6 concerning promotions. It was not revolutionary in character nor was it a rebellion against the action of the government.

Failing to win the support of public opinion, which condemns attempts to disturb the calm and tranquility which has reigned in Spain for three years, the artillery corps surrendered entirely and unconditionally.

The ring leaders of the movement will be judged by special military tribunals which will decide responsibility and fix the measure of guilt.

Neither the army or navy took the least part in the protest nor did the officers or soldiers of the artillery reserve participate. The movement started somewhat violently Saturday at the artillery academy at Segovio, extending to other regions by Sunday morning. However, the government was soon able to prevent the spread of malcontent before the revolting officers could effect any change in the public order.

Pittsburgh Batters Blanked by Sherdel

St. Louis Southpaw Ace Wins 8-0 Victory—Aldridge Easy for Cardinal Hitters.

The St. Louis Cardinals again turned back the Pittsburgh Pirates today in the hectic race for the National League baseball pennant. Sherdel blanked the Pirates, while the Cardinals gleaned eight runs off the delivery of Aldridge.

St. Louis played errorless ball to support Sherdel's southpaw flinging.

The Cardinals scored two runs in the fourth inning, two more in the fifth, three in the seventh and a final counter in the ninth. They compiled twelve hits to nine for the Pirates. Pittsburg had one error.

In the Cincinnati-Chicago game, the score was tied at 5-5 in the fifth inning. Defeat for Cincinnati would give St. Louis a two-game lead.

A WAY TO CUT FIRE LOSSES IN MISSOURI.

A state fire marshal law was urged at a meeting of fire chiefs of Missouri at Springfield this week. Missouri is one of the few states in the country without such a provision. And it is more than probable that its high per capita fire losses are to be connected with the condition. A state fire marshal, backed by adequate authority and assisted by fire chiefs in the various cities, would have powers of supervision and inspection that, if properly exercised, would tend to prevent useless destruction of property and consequent losses, direct and indirect, to the public.

A particular function exercised by such an official and his assistants is the investigation of fires, especially those of suspicious origin. State fire marshal laws confer authority upon the officials to order suspension of insurance payment until it has been established there was no criminal or undue liability in a case of fire. That kind of thing makes the practice of arson unprofitable. It aids in the apprehension and prosecution of persons guilty of the crime. It is a protection to the property owner and other members of the public who must pay the cost of arson and preventable fires generally through increased insurance rates.

A training school to increase the efficiency of firemen in fighting fires is to be established in Kansas City. Fire prevention is of equal if not greater importance. The task of any city department will be heavy as long as arson is common, and preventable fires of other kinds are allowed to occur. It has been shown year after year that the loss of property by fire is entirely too high in Kansas City and the loss in the state as a whole is above the average for the country.—Kansas City Times.

MEMORY.

From the Philadelphia Public Ledger.

Like everything else in the world, memory seems commonplace until one begins to examine it. And then, still like everything else, it becomes instantly so strange and mystical in contents and operation as to baffle every attempt at understanding.

For example, at any given moment the mind may be utterly empty of every consciousness of things past; and then at a word something is recalled out of days so distant as to seem antediluvian and that will bring up something else and that again something more, until a book could be filled with their description.

And in a moment all this host of remembered things will troop back again into the oblivion from which they came to await the next summons.

Where do all these remembered things, or ghosts of things, stay in the intervals between? A mental feat that is positively uncanny in its implications is the digging down into caches of stored but long forgotten facts and ideas and slowly, as if by invisible forceps, dragging them back into consciousness.

Most men and women who keep watch upon their mental processes have learned how to practice this sort of recovery of the forgotten, and they all marvel at it. And the question is: Where was the hiding place of these forgotten things and how much does the mind work this weirdest of the magic arts?

Knowledge is memory. History is memory relayed through many generations. All the great arts of writing, painting, sculpture, music, charters, constitutions, laws and creeds are the tools and instrumentalities by which memory is given fixation and permanence as a precious possession of the race.

But the weirdest of all the operations of memory perhaps are the moral, intellectual and cultural uses made of it to accomplish what we call progress. If we really knew what mystery is involved in the growing precision of our historic recollections, things remembered through the contributing memories of the passing generations, we might fairly produce a shudder or two of awe in the presence of memory's every act; for it is by this subtle power that we know Plato as if he were still alive and out of the sayings of Jefferson and Lincoln and Washington are able to make rules for the better guidance of our own lives.

MORE ON HOG-CALLING.

(New York World).

Since we published a request for information on the art of hog-calling many persons have taken us to task for our ignorance. Nevertheless, although each of our traducers supplies what purports to be the original and authentic call, we find lamentable discrepancies between them. So far we have received the following calls:

Indiana and western Kentucky: "P-o-o-o-o-g-i-e! P-o-o-o-o-g-i-e! P-o-o-o-o-g-i-e!"

Middle west: "Whoo-ee! Who-ee! Who-ee!"

East Texas: "O Pig! Pig O! Pig O! Pig O!"

Now it is quite true that our ignorance on this subject is extensive. Still, how can we be held accountable for knowledge if the experts themselves are unable to agree just what the facts are? We trust these gentlemen will find some way to get together on what the national hog-call is, and when they have finished their deliberations we shall be glad to report their findings.

DR. ELIOT TO THE STUDENTS.

(Address by the late president emeritus on his ninetieth birthday).

Serve the country, serve her in peace as well as in war, serve her by sacrificing money, or example, high professional earnings, in order to take public office, elective or appointive office. Serve her by your personal exertion in the towns, the cities and communities where you settle for your life. Look for the means, the chance, the opportunity, to serve democratic government. It is in democracy that the hope of the world lies. Commit to memory Pasteur's definition of democracy when he said, "Democracy is that form of government which leaves every citizen free to do his best for the public welfare." Follow that. Wherever you live, take every chance that comes to you, and make chances, if they do not come, for serving the public welfare.

One other thing I want to say to you young men. Use the opportunity of selecting studies which you have at Harvard to find out, while you are here in what work, in what profession, you can find joy all your life. That is the thing that every young man ought to seek to find out—in what calling, in what profession, in what occupation am I going to find the work which will give me joy all my days? I have learned by observation of my own life—and I have indulged very little in such observations—that a large part of the happiness of life for me (putting aside, of course, domestic joys, the joys that come with marriage and children, apart from these joys, and its durable satisfaction, have come out of the joy of work. See to it, therefore, that you learn in what occupation or profession you will find long and continuous joy in work.

There is one other exhortation which I should like to give you. Avoid, to the utmost introspection. Avoid dwelling on your own state of mind or body. Does that seem to you opposite to the counsel I last gave you? I said you should seek to find out where you could get joy in work. No, the joy in work which you will need does not involve self-reference. It does involve study on your part, and with the help of teachers and friends, of existing callings among which you should find the one in which you will find joy. But it does not involve introspection, reflecting on yourself, or any effort after "self-expression." The less you think of yourself in this world, the better, and the sooner you get the passion for serving others, at home and abroad, at home particularly, the better.

Washington.—President Coolidge is reported to be thinking about shuffling all the government departments up together and then, when he deals them out again, not dealing so many as there are at present.

Talk of a reorganization of this sort began as long ago as the early part of President Harding's regime. There has, as a matter of fact, been a certain amount of shifting and consolidation of bureaus and divisions, but nothing on the scale of the shaking up the present chief executive is understood to favor.

For example, the impression prevails in the war and navy departments that the president wants to telescope these two together, as a single department of national defense.

There is also a great deal of duplication of efforts in the commerce, interior, agriculture and labor departments. Indeed, a single secretary did hold a joint commerce and labor portfolio.

Secretary of Commerce Hoover already has gobbled up several former functions of the interior department and is said to be looking with covetous eyes on a number of those of the department of agriculture.

A program like this unquestionably would be a measure of economy. Having two or three departments doing the same thing obviously is wasteful.

Efficiency perhaps would be actually promoted.

One man at the head of both army and navy, for instance, ought to be able to co-ordinate their activities and develop team work as it can't be done by two secretaries, with separate and sometimes conflicting policies.

"King" Otto of Hungary Is Given a Car

Budapest—If young "King Otto," eldest son of former Emperor Karl and Empress Zita, is able to find the wherewithal to purchase gasoline he will soon be able to take auto spins around Lequita, where he is now living in exile.

One hundred ladies of Hungary's highest aristocracy have decided to pool their pin-money and order him a special high-powered car. Its fittings will be the finest which the Hungarian automobile industry can produce.

With this gift the ladies wish to remind Otto that his throne is still being held open. While Otto spends his days in Spain studying kingly ways his country, Hungary, remains a kingdom without a king.

Search and Seizure Planned in Finland

Helsingfors—According to the proposed amendments to the "dry law," the police will be empowered to enter any house in Finland where they have reason to think that liquor is concealed.

The authorities are discouraged with the amount of smuggling which now goes on and have appointed a commission to "put some teeth in the law." This commission, in addition to the above, recommends that detectives on motorcycles patrol the inland roads to prevent the transport of inland from the coast, while navy sea-planes will watch the constantly increasing "rum fleet" fathering in Scandinavian waters.

M. E. South Pastors Off for Conference

Maryville and Ravenwood Ministers Go to Columbia.—Appointments Next Monday.

The Rev. R. A. Mitchell, pastor of the M. E. Church, South, accompanied by the Rev. F. S. Mathes of Ravenwood, left by motor this morning for Columbia, where the two pastors will attend the annual meeting of the Missouri Conference of the church.

Mr. Mitchell and Mr. Mathes were accompanied as far as St. Joseph by Paschal Monk and Vernon Barrett, who will attend the Marion Talley concert tonight.

The meeting which the ministers will attend will represent about 50,000 Methodists. Bishop W. F. McMurry will preside.

The first session of the Missouri Conference after the division of American Methodism, was held at Columbia in October, 1845, Bishop Joshua Soule presiding. The last session of the conference there was held in 1911. At that time 47,922 members were enrolled. Now the church is much stronger, and the first unit of a modern church building to cost $350,000 already has been built.

One reason for holding the conference at Columbia this year is to acquaint the ministers and laymen with the importance of completing this work.

Doctor Luther E. Todd, secretary of the board of finance of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, says the church will report at this conference that $2,300,000 has been raised for the superannuated ministers and widows, and this with the $1,000,000 the board had in hand when the movement to raise $10,000,000 for this fund was started, now makes a total of $3,300,000 in cash and pledges. There are about 1000 superannuated ministers and 1500 widows who now are being benefited out of this endowment fund.

Saturday afternoon a temperance rally will be held at the courthouse and addresses will be made by C. M. Hay and Mrs. Jeanette Manley. The Board of Church Extension and Lay Activities will meet in the evening.

Bishop W. F. McMurry will preach Sunday, and various visiting ministers will occupy pulpits in the city. On Monday the appointments of charges in the conference probably will be announced.

A Corset Message for Fall

The New Fall Models are Here

With the advent of new fall colthes the first essential is the proper foundation garment.

Seventy years ago when our grandmothers bought a corset, they selected one of probably a half a dozen suitable styles with no difficulty and usually wore the same model for many years.

The situation today is quite reversed—there are probably as many different styles of corsets as there are customers. Corsetry is improving and progressing constantly in its aims to produce more graceful contours and stimulate health. Thus we have a distinct garment for every type of individual and for every occasion. Where the corset of yesteryear was made of the heaviest material and boning, today it is made of fine fancy fabrics and supple light boning and the garment displays a work of real art instead of a weapon of torture.

So today, we are ready to advise you on the correct garment suitable for your figure. A well cut, supple garment, properly fitted will do wonders for you.

WORK PLACED IN A MUSEUM

JUNIOR RED CROSS PROJECTS GO TO JAPAN

MADE LAST WINTER

Seventh B Grade Pupils at Washington School Were Taught By Mrs. Fred Nelson

Junior Red Cross projects completed last year in the seventh B grade under the direction of the teacher, Mrs. Fred Nelson, at the Washington school, was of such high quality that it has been placed in the new Japanese Red Cross Museum in Tokio, according to word received here. Posters and a portfolio made by the same class and under the direction of Mrs. Nelson which were sent to a mission school in Arizona, have attracted the attention of the Red Cross Courier, a magazine published at Washington, D. C.

Mrs. Fred Nelson, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Foster of this city, supervised the work of making a splendid portfolio and posters which, when completed, were sent to Washington, D. C., by the Maryville chapter of the Red Cross. It was thought that the work would be sent to one of the United State's territories because of the great amount of written matter contained in the projects. However, the National Directors of the Red Cross were so well pleased with the material that it was sent to a Japanese school. It has been learned in Maryville that the heads of the Red Cross in that country have placed the work in the museum on public exhibition.

Japanese dolls, dressed by the school children of that country, will be sent to the children who now are in the seventh A grade.

Following the receipt of word that the projects are to be exhibited in Japan the Red Cross Courier, national organ of that body, published at Washington, D. C., of the September 1 issue came to the local chapter's offices. The article which appeared in the magazine is as follows:

"To implant salesmanship in the minds of the Indian children at the Catholic mission school at Komatke, Ariz., the Juniors of Maryville, Mo., public school sent a portfolio explaining the methods of setting up a general store, with the arrangement of displays and shelves, the science of buying and selling and plans for such a store. This information they obtained through personal visits to stores at Maryville. As the mission school is far from commercial centers, the idea appeals strongly. And the young Indians will soon be weighing, dispensing and wrapping commodities for the benefit of their little community.

"The portfolio prepared by the Maryville Juniors contains literary features, describing their room—the seventh grade—and the pupils themselves. How to sculpture in soap is also explained, with samples of work which include a bust of General Pershing and a kewpie doll."

Mrs. Fern Crull, who has been renamed chairman of the Junior Red Cross division of the Nodaway County Chapter of the national organization, is busy this week in the public school reorganizing the junior workers.

Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Stewart, Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Roach and Stewart Tulloch returned to Maryville yesterday after spending more than a week touring the Ozarks.

Leland Fryar and T. S. Danford of Ravenwood were Maryville visitors today.

A. C. Ford and son of Quitman were in Maryville today.

Mr. and Mrs. Aden White of Ottumwa, Ia., will come today to visit the latter's sister, Mrs. Sara E. Robison, for two weeks. They have been visiting Mr. White's parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. C. White, at Bedford, Ia.

Miss Mae Gannan left today for Fairfax where she will teach Latin and English in the high school.

Mrs. Cal Clouse of Clearmont visited in Maryville today.

Miss Blanche Anderson went to Fairfax this morning to assume her duties as instructor in music and mathematics in the schools there.

Mrs. Dain Bouton of Topeka, Kan., returned to her home yesterday morning after a several days' visit at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles De Neen and family.

Invites Maryville to Fair at Bethany

Northwest Missouri Event Opens Today.—Radio Broadcasting Station at Work Daily.

(By Garland N. White.)

To the Democrat-Forum and Tribune:

"Come to the Fair!"

That, in so many words, is an invitation to my numerous friends in Maryville and Nodaway county to come over to the big Northwest Missouri State Fair which will be held at the fairgrounds in Bethany this week, beginning today (Tuesday) and closing next Saturday night.

One of the features of the fair this year is a radio broadcasting station, which has been erected on the fairgrounds, and has been sending out programs since last Wednesday afternoon. These programs will continue each afternoon and night until the end of the fair. The station is WIBJ, operating on a wave length of 215.7 meters. If in doubt where to tune in for these varied programs, ask your local radio dealers.

In spite of the rainy weather, most of the radio programs have been broadcast as planned, and telegrams and telephone messages of congratulation have been received by the station from distances of many miles.

It had been hoped that Maryville would furnish a program. All of the pre-fair programs have been furnished by local talent and towns within a radius of seventy-five miles of Bethany. During the fair, only fair talent will be on the air.

The indications today are that the fair will have a good week and all records in attendance are expected to be broken. Tuesday will be a free day for all children under fourteen years of age. Livestock and grain judging teams from many schools in Northwest Missouri are expected to be here.

Music will be furnished during the week by Al Sweet's Chicago Cadet Band, and free acts will be given by the Five Bracks, the Five Mounters, Lohse & Sterling, and Fink's Mules. Horse racing will take place the first four days of the fair, and automobile racing and auto polo will be featured Saturday. Thearle-Duffield fireworks will be an attraction for Wednesday, Thursday and Friday nights.

The Clarence A. Wortham shows are bringing several new fun factories this year.

A very high type of livestock is being entered in the stock shows this year, judging from early entries. Several states will be represented among the livestock judges at this fair.

Despite the heavy rains in this section, the dirt roads should be in good condition by Wednesday.

Again I say, "Come to the Fair!" You'll enjoy the Northwest Missouri State Fair at Bethany.

Burlington Junction

J. Howard Thompson, Correspondent.

The recent heavy rains did a vast deal of damage to corn that was planted on the river bottom land. Thousands of acres along the Nodaway River, was inundated. The farmers fear damage from hot damp atmosphere.

Mr. and Mrs. Weymer Graves, of Osceola, Iowa, are moving into their property here in town again. They have lived in the Iowa town for a number of years, owing to work which Mr. Graves was engaged in. They will make their home here now in the future.

Maurice White, a teacher of some years ago in the local high school, but now of Gary, Indiana, was here a few days last week, renewing old acquaintances. Since having left here he has finished a medical course, at the Chicago University, and is now a full fledged Doctor, and is practicing his profession in the Indiana city. His mother, who lives in King City, Mo., accompanied him here for a visit.

The W. F. M. S. of the M. E. Church will have its last meeting for this Conference year at the home of Mrs. R. H. Rees next Thursday afternoon. The mite boxes for the year will be opened at this time. Also Mrs. Mamie Wolfers, who has spent three years in Missionary work in China, will be present and exhibit many Chinese curios which she brought back with her. This will be the most interesting of the Society of the year. All members and friends are cordially invited to be present.

Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Potts, in company with their daughter and her husband, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Yates of Maryville, returned from Bartlesville, Okla., on Thursday of this week. They encountered much mud enroute, which made automobiling very difficult. They had a fine visit.

Charles Wagner is in Scotts Bluff, Nebr. He is combining business with pleasure. Scotts Bluff was his former home, and he has some holdings there, which he had hoped to dispose of while gone. At the same time he will have opportunity to visit many friends in that community. He will return early this week.

W. J. Davis of Porterville, Calif., a brother of Mrs. James Greenelsh, came Saturday for a few days visit with his sister and family. He formerly lived in Nodaway County, in or near Graham. He has been in California, for the past twenty years. He was accompanied here by a brother-in-law, Thomas Hockman, of Conception Junction.

Ernest Gardner, one of Burlington Junction's hustling young business men, has tired in living longer in a rented home, and has bought one for himself and family. Friday, a deal was made by which he became the sole owner of the Ralph Wray home, and will take immediate possession. He is now located just two blocks east of his place of business.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Wray and daughter left Monday for Sacramento, Cal., to make their home permanently. Thus Burlington Junction again loses one of its best families among the younger set. Mr. Wray, while here was manager and salesman for the Wray Oil Company, and during the two years of residence made many friends who regret to see them leave.

Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Halferty, have just returned from a most delightful visit with friends and relatives in Illinois. They were accompanied by Mrs. Stevens of Tarkio, a sister of Mrs. Halferty. Their purpose of going at this time was to attend a family reunion of Mrs. Halferty's people. There were people present from a number of States. The reunion, was held in Champaigne. While there they, however, visited Springfield, Malcolm, and other places. They were gone two weeks.

Because of conflicting dates this week, the Industrial Society of the Methodist Church, will meet at the Church on Friday afternoon instead of Thursday afternoon as it usually does. All interested will note the change of date, and come to the Church on Friday.

The continuous and excessive rains of last week greatly interfered with the reroofing the Methodist Church. Saturday night came and found the work less than half accomplished. However, Will James, the carpenter, and his force of men hope to complete the job this week. This is a greatly needed improvement.

Carl Cochran, grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Cochran, who has been spending the summer with his grandparents, returned to his home in College Springs, Iowa, last Saturday, that he might enter school in that city, on Monday morning. The lad had had such a good time here that he rather regretted going back home.

This community was again visited with a deluge of rain Saturday night and Sunday morning, there being between three and four inches falling. It continued raining so late in the day Sunday as to greatly interfere with all morning services at the churches of the town. It has rained every day for several continuous days, and in that time about thirteen inches of water has fallen. It bids fare, however, at this writing to be more settled weather this coming week.

Mrs. W. G. Carpenter, our genial Postmaster, is not only a good business woman, but an expert florist as well. Her flower garden is a thing of beauty, and favorably commented upon by all who see it. Every day she brings a most beautiful boquet of flowers and places them in the lobby of the Post Office that the general public may enjoy them as well. It may be, perchance, a bunch of beautifully colored gladioli, or it may be a fine assortment of varied colored astors, or zenias, or tube roses, or something, that will please.

The Rev. E. B. Thompson, the District Superintendent for the St. Joseph District of the Methodist Church was unable to meet his engagement on Sunday night, as had been previously announced, on account of wash-outs on the railroad, and bad condition of the automobile roads. The Rev. J. Howard Thompson, the pastor of the local Church substituted for him, and conducted the Fourth Quarterly Conference in his stead, at the close of the public service.

Mr. and Mrs. George Riley, and two daughters, Hazel and Mabel, and Mrs. Laban Harrison all of Corning, Iowa, in company with Mrs. Chris Kircher, and daughter, Ruth, of Ann Arbor, Mich., are guests at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Harrison. Mrs. Laban Harrison, is the doctor's mother, and Mrs. Riley is his sister.

Miss Freda Crouse of Mound City, one of the teachers in our public schools, came Sunday afternoon, to be ready for the opening of school Monday morning. She has been a student at the State Teachers College in Maryville, for the past year, and comes to the school here well equipped.

The Fourth Quarterly Conference for the Methodist Church in Session, last Sunday night at the close of the Public services, extended to the present pastor, the Rev. J. Howard Thompson, an unanimous invitation to return as pastor for another year. There were twenty official members present. The pastor is just concluding his first year with the church here. He will leave for Conference next Tuesday morning.

Miss Hesterine Shipps, of Arkoe, and a member of the public school faculty of Mound City, for the past four years, was in town between trains on Monday morning on her way to Mound City to begin her school york for the year. She is one of the most popular teachers of Holt County.

Miss Lucile Rhodes, who has been employed in a millenry store in Beatrice, Neb., since the closing of school last May, returned to her home here Sunday night, to enter school again for the year. She is a Junior in the Burlington Junction high school. While in the Nebraska city, she made her home with her married sister, Mrs. C. J. Lash.

Stewart Lewis of Kansas City was an over Sunday visitor with friends here in town. He with his brother, Edwin, have bought the Page County Democrat, a newspaper in Clarinda, Iowa, and are already in charge of the business. He will join his brother in a few weeks.

The weather bids fair to again assume its normal state after a week of excessive rains, floods, and overflowed creeks and rivers. The damage to river bottom crops is not nearly so great as was first anticipated. The fall pastures will be abundant as a result of the rains.

Rev. J. Howard Thompson will be in Elmo Wednesday afternoon, substituting for the District Superintendent, Dr. E. B. Thompson, of St. Joseph., in holding the Fourth Quarterly Conference for the Elmo Methodist Charge.

A Scientific "Divining Rod"

Fakers used to locate wells with "divining rods." This man, A. J. P. Bertschy of Omaha, has gone them one better. With his "electro-static balance," shown above, he has located Nebraska's first oil well, at Campbell, in Franklin county. The whole town, with a population of 300, had contributed $70,000 or more to the formation of a company to bore for oil; Bertschy's discovery means they will get their money back and a whole lot more. He predicts a good future for Nebraska's new "field."

Prohibition, World Court, Coolidge Republicanism and Fight For Leadership, Principal Issues Today's Primaries

Milwaukee, Sept 7—With prohibition the world court and the political leadership of "Young Bob" La Follette among the chief Wisconsin voters were making their selection in the state primary today among 41 candidates seeking the United States senatorship and various state offices.

An exceptionally heavy vote was expected as the campaign has been one of the hardest fought in the history of the state. Chief national interest was centered in the republican nomination for United States senator sought by Senator Irvine L. Lenroot, incumbent, Governor J. J. Blaine, supported by La Follette, and Frank J. Kelly.

Lenroot based his appeal for return to the senate on his support of the Coolidge administration, his vote for the world court and an attack on the political leadership of La Follette. La Follette stumped the state in support of Blaine's candidacy, attacking Lenroot for his world court vote, his vote for the seating of Senator Newberry of Michigan, and his stand on farm relief.

Late in the campaign prohibition took an outstanding place among the issues. Lenrott said he favored a state referendum and would abide by the will of the people on the wet and the dry question. Blaine received the endorsement of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment. Kelly claimed to be wetter than Blaine and attacked Blaine's endorsement by the Association.

Herman L. Ekern, attorney general, is the progressive candidate for republican nomination for governor. He is opposed by Fred R. Zimmerman, secretary of state, W. Stanley Smith, former insurance commissioner, and Charles B. Perry.

Boston, Sept. 7—Scant interest was manifested in today's primaries except in a few congressional contests.

Neither William M. Butler, Republican, nor David I. Walsh, democrat was opposed for the United States senatorial nominations of their respective parties, and little competition marked the lineups for state offices.

Republican congressional seats are being contested in five districts. In the first district, Allen T. Treadway of Stockbridge is opposed by Charles H. Wright of Pittsfield.

Congresswoman Edith Nourse Rogers of Lowell, seeking re-election, is opposed for the Republican nomination in the fifth district by John Bordman of Concord.

In the ninth district there is a three-cornered battle, involving Max Waldo Cohen of Brookline and Joseph Linhares and Charles L. Underhill, both of Somerville.

Louis A. Frothingham of Easton is opposing J. Wilfred Richard of Avon in the fourteenth district and in the sixtenth district, John D. W. Bodifish of Barnstable, stone blind, is opposed by Charles L. Gifford, also of Barnstable.

The only other Republican contest is for the nomination for attorney general, the candidates being Elijah Adlow and Alexander Lincoln, both of Boston, and Arthur K. Reading of Cambridge.

The principal Democratic congressional fight is in the tenth district, where five candidates seek the nomination. These are William J. Francis, Peter F. Tague, John J. Douglass and William F. Doyle, all of Boston, and Lawrence F. Quigley of Chelsea.

Stephen F. Monahan and Eugene A. Lynch, both of Holyoke, are the candidates in the first district; Peter E. Sullivan and James H. Ferguson, both of Worcester, in the fourth; John P. Brennan and John D. Lynch, both of Cambridge, and Whitfield L. Tuck of Winchester in the eighth; James A. Gallivan and John W. McCormack, both of Boston, in the twelfth; Edwin F. Tuttle of Bellingham and John P. Tierney of Newton in the thirteenth; and Joseph La Fontaine and Frank A. Manning, both of Brockton, in the fourteenth.

Joseph B. Ely of Pittsfield and Harry J. Dooley of Boston are opposed for the Democratic nomination for lieutenant governor; and Harold Williams, Jr. of Brookline, and John E. Swift of Milford, for attorney general.

Carson City, Nev., Sept. 7—Coolidge Republicanism, prohibition and the world court were the chief issues confronting Nevada at today's primary election.

On a platform of administration support, Tasker L. Oddie, incumbent, sought the senatorial re-nomination on the Republican ticket, opposed by E. E. Roberts, mayor of Reno, a strong anti-prohibitionist.

Ray T. Baker, director of the United States mint under the Wilson and Harding administrations, headed the Democratic ticket for senatorial nomination. Three opposed him, P. A. McCarran, former chief justice of the Nevada supreme court, whose campaign has been built on opposition to the world court and prohibition, C. H. McIntosh, Reno attorney, and Dr. W. H. Brennan.

Oddie and Baker were quoted as two-to-one favorites over their principal opponents, Roberts and McCarran, both wets. Prohibition's major trial, however, will come with the general election November 2, when Nevada votes on the Scott resolution, requesting the constitutional congress to consider modification of prohibition.

Only two candidates sought nomination for United States representative. They were S. S. Arentz, Republican incumbent, and Maurice J. Sullivan.

Governor J. G. Scrugham, Democrat, seeking re-nomination on his record of exploitation of state resources, was opposed by Fred Balzar, Republican state leader.

Concord, N. H., Sept. —A triangular fight for the Republican nomination for United States Senator held the bulk of the interest as New Hampshire voters went to the polls in today's state primaries.

Senator George H. Moses seeking a third term, was opposed by former Gov. Robert P. Bass of Peterboro and Judge James W. Remick of Concord. Bass was expected to show considerable strength and was considered Moses' chief opponent.

Bass represents the progressive wing of the Republican party, Moses, the "regular" Republicans. The former was governor in 1911 and 1912 and was one of the "seven little governors" who in 1912 memorialized Theodore Roosevelt to be again a candidate for the Presidency.

In that campaign, Gov. Bass quit the Republican ranks and was titular head of the Progressive party in this state and its candidate for United States Senator in 1913. When the progressive party collapsed, he returned to the Republican fold and was elected to the Legislature as recently as 1913.

Moses always has been a straight party man. First elected to the senate in 1918 to succeed Dr. Jacob H. Gallinger, he was re-elected in 1920 for a full term, which he is now completing.

The feature of the gubernatorial contest lies in the fact that Gov. John G. Winant is attempting, for the first time, to break the one-term precedent that has ben held inviolate for 48 years. He is opposed in today's primaries by Chairman Huntley N. Spaulding of the state board of education.

Mayor Eaton D. Sargent of Nashua is unopposed for the democratic nomination for governor.

Phoenix, Ariz., Sept. 7—Governor George W. P. Hunt, candidate for a fifth term, was the pivotal figure in Arizona's primaries today.

If Governor Hunt is renominated by his democratic following he is virtually assured of re-election, according to his supporters, and will establish a record of being returned to office five terms.

The governor probably faces one of the hardest battles of his colorful career in Arizona politics. He is opposed by E. E. Ellinwood, attorney of the copper corporations for many years, and chancellor of the board of regents of the University of Arizona.

J. J. Cox, labor candidate advocating banking changes, is also a democratic candidate for the gubernatorial post.

The republicans have two candidates in the field, E. S. Clark, former attorney general, and Tom Maddox, former state highway engineer and a gubernatorial candidate two years ago.

In the senatorial race, U. S. Senator Ralph Cameron, is unopposed for renomination by the republicans, and Carl Hayden, present congressman, has no opposition for the democratic senatorial nomination.

The battle of Governor Hunt for renomination practically monopolized the interest of the voters, and heavy balloting was expected.

Arizona, only 14 years a state, has made much of its progress under direction of the pioneer politician. He served three consecutive terms after Arizon was admitted to statehood, and aside from the two terms under Tom Campbell, the state has known no other governor but Hunt.

The VANITY CASE

NEA FICTION

BEGIN HERE TODAY.

In Harbor Gardens, Long Island, in an elaborate bungalow, lived PERRY HEATH, an artist, and his wife, MYRA.

Myra, a cold, blond beauty and wealthy in her own right, was not in love with her husband, but she tolerated him. Heath for his part found amusement in his flirtations with other women, and, despite an unruly shock of brown hair and owlish tortoise shell glasses which gave him a Bohemian look, they found him not unattractive.

At the time the story opens, the Heaths were entertaining two house guests:

LAWRENCE INMAN, a distant relative of Myra's, and, aside from Perry, her only heir, and

BUNNY MOORE, young, vivacious, golden-haired, an old friend of Myra's.

Myra Heath was a peculiar woman. She had never used rogue or any other cosmetics in her life. She never dressed in colors—nothing but whites or grays or other neutral tones. She had a passion for collecting rare old bottles and her latest was an old whisky bottle, which she was quite proud of but which aroused her husband to scorn.

There is a growing intimacy between Inman and Myra Heath and Bunny and Perry, and at a bridge game Myra is so provoked at Bunny's apparent infatuation for her husband that she reproves her sharply, and declares that she has made her will out in favor of Inman, cutting off Perry.

It develops that Perry is a candidate for the presidency of the Country Club and his chief opponent is a man named SAM ANDERSON. Bunny, thumbing through a portfolio of Heath's drawings, runs across a card marked "The Work of Perry Heath." Inman, laughing, places it beside the whisky and soda on the table.

That night, after Bunny and Inman retire, Myra Heath alludes mysteriously to her husband's "secret." When Perry goes to bed, Inman comes down stairs, and he and Myra are in each other's arms when Perry Heath discovers them.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

IV

It was characteristic of Myra that she showed no surprise or embarrassment.

She remained in Inman's embrace and turned her face to her husband with a slight frown of irritation at the intrusion.

Larry, too, was apparently undismayed, and stood his ground, as he took his cue from Myra.

"Then it's now a case of the time, the place and the loved one all together," he said, lightly. "Go ahead, Perry, have your say."

"There's not much to say." Heath lighted a cigaret. "But as an interested bystander, I'd like to know what you two propose to do."

"That's only natural, I'm sure," Inman remarked, "what are we going to do, Myra?"

"You're going to do what I tell you," cried Heath, suddenly wrathy. "You, Larry, will go to your room at once, pack your things and get out of here the first thing in the morning."

"And if I refuse to obey?"

"You won't refuse. You are at my mercy. I have caught you down here holding a clandestine meeting with my wife. I find her in your arms. I have a right to shoot you!"

"Why don't you?" asked Inman, with maddening coolness.

"You're not worth it!" Heath glared at him. "Not worth the powder and shot it would take to kill you. Get out, I tell you! Go upstairs, and before I am down in the morning, you are to be far away from here and never come back! Get that?"

"Yes, Heath, I get that."

"Go, then." And Inman went, and again the husband and wife were alone together.

Mrs. Prentis always sat down to her breakfast at half-past eight o'clock. If truth were told, she would have preferred an earlier hour, but Harbor Gardens people were late risers, and eight-thirty was just about the earliest one could get breakfast with decency.

Most of the Gardeners liked nine o'clock better, and many were later still.

This summer, her nephew, one Todhunter Buck, was spending the month of June with her. And as he was a docile and good-tempered chap, whom she had loved from babyhood on, she ruled him with a rod of iron, at least regarding her household appointments.

So Todhunter, whose awkward ancestral name had long since been reduced to Toddy, almost always beamed at his aunt across her matutinal table.

In available weather, this table was laid on the pleasant bungalow porch, which gave on the Western landscape and commanded a fairly good view of the Heath home. Being on the north horn of the crescent shaped harbor, these houses faced south.

"Toddy," said Mrs. Prentiss, as she poured the coffee, "there were queer doings at the Heath house last night."

"So?" said the youth, with a perfunctory showing of interest. "Jazz?"

"No, they're not that sort. Oh, I forgot you don't know them, of course, you having arrived only yesterday. But there's a girl over there that you'll like."

"Pretty?" Toddy sat up.

"More than pretty,—a vision of angelic beauty!"

"Gosh, Auntie, never heard you rave before!"

"And she's a nice girl, too. Oh, flapper and all that, but with some sense in her silly head. But I was telling you about last night."

"No, you weren't, you hadn't begun."

"Well, I will, if you'll be still a minute. I couldn't sleep—"

"Poor old auntie, I know. It must be awful to be so wakeful."

"It's terrible Todhunter, you've no idea what it means to lie with wide open eyes and hear the clock strike the hours and half hours all through the night!"

"No. Why have a striking clock?"

"So I'll know what time it is, stupid. Well, last night, I was prowling about my room,—I do that when I just get worn out lying in bed awake—"

"Yes, go on. When does the pretty girl come in?"

"Not at all. Be quiet, will you? The people next door all went to bed some time before twelve o'clock."

"No!"

"Hush. Don't be silly. And then, a little later, say, about midnight, there was a small light, a dim one, in the studio. That's the room at this end of the house."

"H'm. I suppose the pretty girl came down to the library to get a book. They always do that.'

"Well, maybe. Then after a short time, there was a big light flashed on—"

"Of course. The hero of the story comes down and finds girl, in bewitching negligee, with her hair down—"

"Will you be still! Well, then, about one o'clock the lights all went out except for two tiny sparks, that looked like two candles."

"And probably were. The two big sparks being the girl and the man."

"Hush, I'm serious, Tod. For after that, oh—half an hour after, the big light was flashed on again, stayed on for a short time, and then went off, leaving the two little dim lights again."

"Got you. Proceed."

"Then after another interval, comes the big light again, and then, later, that goes out and the two little lights stay there all the rest of the night."

"Till what time?"

"I don't know. I stopped watching and went back to bed about three. The little lights were burning then, and when I awoke it was broad daylight."

"Well, Aunt Em, I don't think you've detailed such a very astounding sequence of events after all. Lights on and off in a house, are not of unprecedented occurrence."

"No. But what were the two little lights that stayed on through all the other ups and downs of the big lights?"

"Night lights, I suppose——"

"Nonsense! I've lived next door to the Heaths since the first of May, and they never burnt night lights before."

"Always has to be a first time. But what do you want me to say? I'll agree it's amazing, alarming, ferrfying —anything you wish. But I don't get it."

"That's just it, Tod. I don't get it either. I think something has happened over there."

"Do you separate the letters of your words when you write, Auntie?"

"You ought to know. I often write to you. Why?"

"Yes, I know you do. I remember now. You write half a word, and then take up your pen and put it down a bit further on, to finish it."

"Well, what of it?"

"Only that it means that the writer has intuition to a marked degree. So my adored Aunt, I believe your assumption is right, and something did happen next door, last night. Your intuition is doubtless correct. What do you suppose the happening was?"

"Toddy, you are a trial. I never know whether you're interested in what I'm saying, or just poking fun at me."

"Both, dear. That is, I'm interested in the pretty girl. Tell me more about her."

"Oh, she has yellow hair and blue eyes and a skin like peaches and cream. She's a friend of Mrs. Heath's, and I think she has bewitched Mr. Heath. She would bewitch any man not totally blind!"

"Yet you like her, Aunt?"

"Yes, she's a dear girl. Sort of homelike and gentle-mannered with older persons, like me. But I expect she's a hoyden among her own crowd."

"She's younger than the Heaths, then?"

"Yes; Bunny is twenty-two. The Heaths are both over thirty."

"Me for the Bunny! Why the kittenish name?"

"Her nam is Berenice. But she's always called Bunny."

"Oh, well, I'd just as lief call her that as anything. When can I see her?"

"Today, probably. They'll all be at the Greshams' this afternoon, and we'll be there, too."

"All right, but I'll hang about outside this morning, and hope to catch a preliminary glimpse of the universal charmer."

Toddy, having finished his breakfast, lighted a cigaret, as he glanced over toward the Heath house.

But he saw no sign of the occupants nor even any servants about, opening doors or windows.

And then, just as aunt and nephew rose from the table, there came to their ears a loud scream from the house next door.

BE SURE A BABY GETS A DRINK OFTEN

An Infant Needs Fresh Water at Least Every Three Hours, When Awake, to Keep It in a Healthy Condition.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States Senator From New York.
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Every few months I want to tell the new mothers about the importance of gratifying baby's thirst for water. It is a terrible thing to be thirsty and not able to get a drink. Little babies get thirsty just like grown-ups do. You must not forget for a period of three hours that babies need water. Be sure to supply them with it.

When a baby weeps and wails the first thing the mother does is to make a survey to see if there is a pin sticking in the delicate skin. It seems natural to think that this must be the cause of the crying.

There are not enough pins in all the world to account for the many cries of the many babies. But there is enough thirst in the world to make every baby raise a fuss at least once a day.

Sometimes little babies get restless. No position you can find makes the little morsel content. Try a teaspoonful of water and like magic when the drops pass the rosebud lips, a smile will wreathe the face.

One time I heard two mothers discussing the subject of a baby's thirst. One mother said: "A baby does not need water. He gets fluid enough in the milk." The other mother was quite horrified. She realized that plain, simple, pure water is needed just as much as milk is needed.

Babies are much more susceptible to disease than grown-up people are. You know what serious epidemics of disease have resulted from the drinking of contaminated water. Typhoid fever and intestinal troubles only less serious are traced to impure drinking water.

You must make sure that the water your baby has to have is free from contamination and incapable of giving the stomach-ache or dysentery to the sensitive infant.

To make sure that the water your baby has to have is good water you should provide yourself with a bottle which has been boiled or thoroughly scalded. This bottle should be filled with water which has been boiled for several minutes. Then the bottle is stoppered with sterile cotton and put away to cool.

It takes some trouble to do this, but to take care of the baby means a lot of trouble. I can't think of any job, however, equal to the mother job, including all the trouble involved in it. To see a baby thrive under the tender care of a mother is ample reward for all the trouble taken.

When a bottle of water is prepared in this way it is good for a day. If it is carefully stoppered every time it is used and kept in a cool place it will keep pure and sweet.

From this bottle of prepared water the baby should be given a little every couple of hours between feedings. A teaspoonful of this will make the baby very happy. It will keep him quiet and content. To protect him from thirst will help him to gain strength and vigor.

One of the important functions of the body is to get rid of the waste material. This cannot be done unless the waste is put into solution. Everybody, whether a baby or a grown-up, should take sufficient water to dissolve the waste material and help carry it away.

In the case of a baby the fluid part of the milk is not enough. There must be a reasonable amount of water in addition in order that there may be proper disposal of waste. An abundance of water taken by the baby or by the grown-up will help the kidneys and skin and also the intestinal tract.

Rt. Rev. Arthur J. Drossaerts, for eight years bishop of San Antonio, Tex., has been appointed archbishop of the newly created Roman Catholic archdiocese of San Antonio, formerly a part of the New Orleans province. Mitchell and Byrd Vie for Aeronautic Honor Fiery Air Man, Who Was Dismissed From Service, And Hero Of Pole Flight Rivals.

Philadelphia, Sept. 7.—Plans to teach the youth of America the principles of aviation in schools and colleges were to come before the annual convention of the National Aeronautics Association, opening here today in conjunction with the National Air Races that started September 4.

England, Germany and Japan this year are organizing campaigns to instruct their youth in aeronautics. In Japan, the program is under the supervision of the Imperial Department of Education in Tokio.

Another feature of the convention is to be the choice of president for the next year. Col. "Billy" Mitchell, fiery airman who was disciplined because of his criticism of the government aviation program, and Commander Richard E. Byrd, hero of this year's North Pole flight, are the major candidates.

Mitchell was being boosted by the New Lork chapter and Byrd by the Boston delegation. Godfrey L. Cabot, of Boston, is the present head of the Association.

On the last night of the convention, next Saturday evening, will be held the annual smoker, attended by over 5,000 airmen. Prizes for the National Air Races will be awarded at that time.

Buenos Aires.— Some girls are left waiting at the church, but Senorita Maria Laura Labore, of Buenor Aires, was left waiting at a jewelry shop. Not only that, but her finance, Hector, Julio Nunez, got away with Maria's jewels, valued at approximately $2,500.

Nunez had been engaged to marry Senorita Labore. The marriage received the sanction of the girl's family, the date was set, and the arrangements made at the church.

On her wedding day, Maria received a telephone call from Nunez, asking her to meet him at a jewelry shop, and to bring along her jewelery, as the groom wanted an expert to make sure that the bride's jewels were in good condition.

Nunez received the jewels, excused himself, and left the shop by a side door. Maria waited for two hours. Then she went home. For the first night in six months, Nunez did not show up. The next day, accompanied by her parents and a policeman, Maria went to Nunez' home, where she found that he had left for Rosario the day before, accompanied by his wife and three children.

Nunez was arrested in Rosario, and is awaiting trial here.

Lord Gainford

Baron of Headlam, one of England's largest coal owners, is also England's champion male knitters.

Whenever there is a knitting circle or competition of any consequence in any part of the island, Lord Gainford is usually present.

Retiring from the presidency of the Board of Education in 1915, this wealthy baron applied for, and was granted, a political pension of $6,000 a year. He gave the pension up under public pressure, but a few months later was appointed Postmaster-General.

Later he retired to the quietness of the House of Lords, where he has frequently been spokesman for the mine owners.

STEWART'S WASHINGTON LETTER

By CHARLES P. STEWART.
NEA Service Writer.

Washington—Despite all the finger print experts' bragging about the infallibility of their method of identification, J. Herbert Taylor of the indentification division of the navy, is working out a new system.

If a set of prints are handed to an expert, with the information, "This is John Doe; see if you have him on file," the expert can find out very quickly. But if the prints are those of an unknown individual, the expert has to do a deal of searching through his records to determine whether or not he has a corresponding set.

Furthermore, though all experts agree that there are no sets of prints just alike, there are some pretty strong resemblances.

Finally, suppose a question arises concerning the identity of someone who has been a long time dead—is nothing but a skeleton perhaps—or who perished in a fire or an explosion. The impossibility of taking prints is obvious in such a case.

But where a body, or even a skeleton, is available at all, the skull is almost certain to be available with it. The features may be mutilated, the bone may be crushed or it may be charred by fire, but unless it has been destroyed completely, enough of it will be left to permit an examination of the teeth.

When a recruit joins the navy his teeth are always thoroughly overhauled. After that the dentist sees them again at least once a year.

It is upon this dental record that Expert Taylor depends.

Expert Taylor does not expect his system to supplant finger prints, but he does believe it will prove an invaluable supplement to the latter.

A dental identification is a matter of minutes, while an identification by finger prints sometimes is a matter of days. Having accomplished it by the former method, it can be verified by the latter without the necessity for an examination of perhaps thousands of prints.

Washington.—So many brickbats are thrown at the government that it's a shame to withhold a bouquet when one seems to be indicated.

The Justice Department, then, did a mighty good piece of work when it sat on Gen. Enrique Estrada's scheme to lead a filibustering expedition into Lower California from this side of the Mexican border.

Filibustering has cost the United States lots of trouble in the past.

The filibusters' motives may be good—though generally they're purely mercenary—but, at best, they're too utterly irresponsible.

A country, at peace with this one, attacked from here, has a right to complain.

No military movement of any consequence can be organized very secretly. If Estrada had succeeded in launching one from American soil against Mexico, President Calles would have been justified in suspecting the United States had winked at it.

Mexican-American relations are plenty delicate enough now, without any such additional strain.

Any fly-by-night little bunch of filibusters who try to butt in and complicate matters deserves a good spanking, the Justice Department holds.

Gen. Estrada's expedition was a small affair, but army men say it might have gained control of Lower California, where Mexico's forces are weak.

Intrenched there, in the present critical situation south of the Rio Grande, there's no knowing, they say at the State Department, the extent of the disturbance it might have kicked up.

The Justice Department squelched it before it got started, and its bouquet is well deserved.

Cape Girardeau—The City Council at a meeting voted to issue $30,000 in bonds to pay indebtedness incurred by the city for improvement work in the last three years.

Plotter

Hope of gaining wealth inspired Clyde Reese Bachelor, 27 (above), to plot the shotgun murder of his rich father-in-law, Judge Lamar C. Smith, at Wetumpka, Ala.. Bachelor told authorities. He hired a negro to pull the trigger. Bachelor was jailed.

Closing Grain Review.

Chicago, Sept. 7.—A surprisingly large volume of export business the seaboard placed it at between 3 and 4 million bushels over the holidays, the strong tone of the Winnipeg exchange and the bad weather over the Canadian Northwest which caused it, sent wheat prices to sharply higher levels.

The close was 1⅜ to 1¾ cents over the previous close. Cash values were steady to a cent higher. The trade lacked leadership on either side today and as a result the market did not go as far as some expected.

Corn closed 1¼ to 1 3-8 cents above Saturday's final figures. It was strong throughout the session because of the heavy rains and the need of at least three weeks of hot weather to mature the crops before the first frost. Cash values were steady to higher.

Oats was a slow affair closing ⅛ to ¼ cent higher after having some of the gains registered on the strength of the other pits. Cash prices were steady.

Provisions sold off early on the hog run and free selling of lard, but rallied to close unchanged.

HUSBAND DID THE WASHING

His Wife Confined to Her Bed by Ill Health

Because of his wife's frequent ill health, Mr. J. F. Gage was obliged to do the washing and cooking for the family.

One day when Mrs. Gage was confined to her bed, he brought her the newspaper to read. Among the advertisements she noticed a letter from another sick woman telling of the help she had received from Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"I'll try it," she decided.

Her husband brought home a bottle and only a few days after she had begun to take it she felt well enough to be up around the house. Gradually her general health improved until she is now able to do her own work.

In a letter which Mrs. Gage recently wrote, she said, "I have taken twelve bottles and feel like a new woman." She has told many women about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and one of her friends is now taking it. Her address is Mrs. J. F. Gage, Route 5, Brownwood, Texas.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been taken by women for more than half a century with very satisfactory results.

FINE PROGRAM FOR OPENING

LARGE CROWD AT PREMIERE LAST NIGHT.

DREAM COMES TRUE

Maryville Has Modern and Elaborate Theater, Which Is Termed Great Community Asset.

Amid pleasing music, refreshing laughter and mirth-provoking movies, the Missouri, Maryville's elaborate $75,000 playhouse, gave its premiere to a large-sized audience last night.

Maryvillians' dream of a modern, up-to-date theater has come true.

Although the program lasted for three hours, the audience seemed reluctant to leave, for "first nighters" enjoy the thrill that always accompanies the opening of a new theater.

The atmosphere itself seemed different. Somehow it permeated a "dressed up" spirit and this added to the success of the premiere.

The new theater was termed a "great community asset" by D. A. Caldwell, secretary of the Maryville Chamber of Commerce, one of the speakers last night. It will afford ample opportunity for recreation, will add to the value of Maryville and will be a great advertisement for this city, Mr. Caldwell pointed out. Persons living in adjoining counties will now not need to go to some far off city for amusement but can find it nearer home. This will not only benefit the theater owners but the whole town as well, the secretary believes.

The problem of leisure time is an important one, Uel W. Lamkin, president of the Northwest Missouri State Teachers College, said. The busy man has no time to wrong society but the idle person is the one to be feared. A theater such as the Missouri can afford the right type of entertainment and should be appreciated by all the citizens, the speaker said. Not the owners but the community itself should be congratulated for the erection of the Missouri, Mr. Lamkin concluded.

A Laugh Is Worth While.

A comparison between the "movies" of today and a quarter of a century ago was made by the Rev. R. E. Musgrave, pastor of the First Christian Church. The minister told of going to a "magic lantern" show near his Iowa home more than twenty-five years ago and then, by inference, compared those days with the present. Any show that can produce a good laugh is worth while, the Rev. Musgrave said.

L. M. Eek acted as chairman and introduced the speakers. He read several telegrams from various film and vaudeville concerns congratulating the owners of the Missouri, J. F. Cook and sons, C. E. and J. R., upon the completion of the new theatre and extending best wishes for its success.

The sweet strains from the new pipe organ, played by Ralph Scott, formally inaugurated the dedicatory program. From the first Mr. Scott clearly demonstrated he was master of the keys. As is her custom, Mrs. Fred Wolfers charmed the audience by her vocal solo. She was accompanied at the piano by Thomas H. Annett. Ralph Yehle delighted his hearers with a violin solo and responded to an encore. Brumbaugh's fourteen-piece orchestra furnished several pleasing numbers.

Feature Picture Fine.

The feature picture, "Battling Butler," starring Buster Keaton, was a scream from start to finish. Originally a New York and London stage success, the story of the rich young idler who encounters adventure in copious quantities when he masquerades as a prizefighter is rich in laughs, love, interest and last, but not least, in thrills.

Harry Lord, comedy singing-talking entertainer, was good and Roisman's Alabamans, juvenile musicians, were "red hot" in their jazz selections. The leader, violinist, was exceptionally good.

Maybe She Wants a Milk Bath

It isn't often you see a bathing beauty doing anything but stand around in a bathing suit. Here's Anne Foucar, just chosen Miss Omaha, however who poses as a milkmaid. Possibly she's trying to get materials for a milk bath. Incidentally, she can really swim—she won a championship at Honolulu recently.

WOMAN DIES IN ACCIDENT

TARKIO WOMAN SUCCUMBS TO SHOCK OF COLLISION.

ON HIGHWAY NUMBER 1

Blinded by Sunlight, Editor of Tarkio Avalanche Drives Car Into Coupe Operated by Own Employee.

Sunlight reflecting through a windshield and into the eyes of L. H. Summer, editor of the Tarkio Avalanche, is said to have caused the motor car, which he was driving late yesterday afternoon, to collide with a car driven by Charles McAdams, also of the Avalanche office, killing Mrs. Betty Kemp, 77-year-old Tarkio woman. The dead woman owned the motor car which was driven by McAdams, a 19-year-old boy who has been acting as her chauffeur this summer.

Mr. Summer was accompanied by his wife and baby daughter and Miss Alma Walker while Mrs. Kemp and the McAdams boy were the only occupants of the second car. The Maxwell coupe, driven west on State Highway No. 1 by the Avalanche editor, and the Kemp car, a Ford coupe, were completely wrecked as a result of the collision. Miss Walker is at the Summer home in Tarkio suffering from a broken leg, while the others, except the dead woman, were able to be about their work today.

An inquest is being held at Tarkio this afternoon but at a late hour only two of the ten witnesses summoned had been heard.

Mrs. Kemp and young McAdams had spent yesterday afternoon in Rock Port and had started for their homes in Tarkio when their car was hit by the Summer coupe. The Summers were on their way to Rock Port to spend the evening. The girl who was injured in the accident lives at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Summer and attends the Tarkio high school.

Following the collision Dr. Clifford Waugh of Tarkio was summoned and gave medical aid to the Walker girl and other members of the party. The body of Mrs. Kemp was taken to Tarkio where funeral services will be conducted from the Baptist Church tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock.

IS TRYING DAUGHERTY

FEDERAL COURT IS SCENE OF CONSPIRACY TRIAL

New York, Sept. 7—Harry M. Daugherty, former attorney general, and Col. Thomas W. Miller, former alien property custodian, went to trial in federal court here today charged with conspiracy to defraud the government of "their good and honest services."

The charges against them were contained in an indictment handed down May 7 alleging that they authorized the transfer of $7,000,00 in cash and securities from the custody of the government to the Societe Suisse pour Valeurs de Metaux without weighing and searching the Swiss corporation's claim.

The $7,000,000 represents the sale of the stock of the American Metals Company, a corporation formerly owned by Germans and as such seized by the government after this country's entrance into the war. Miller and Daugherty authorized the transfer of the property to the Swiss company on the plea that it and not the German capitalists was the true owner. The government charges that the original German owners were also the owners of the Swiss company.

Early Indictment Dropped

In earlier indictments it was also charged that Richard Merton, representing the German owners, gave cash and liberty bonds to the amount of $441,000 to Miller, Jess Smith, confidant of Daugherty, and the late John T. King, Republican party leader. Of this amount $50,000 was alleged to have been given before the transfer and $391,000 afterward. This indictment was dismissed to avoid technical obstacles and the present indictment based on the same evidence filed by the government. Under the May 7 indictment it will not be necessary to prove that the Swiss claim was illigitimate but merely that Miller and Daugherty had deprived the government of their rightful services as public servants.

The present prosecution grew out of the senate investigations of the naval oil leases and the attorney general's office after the death of President Harding. When the late Representative Frederick Hicks succeeded Miller as alien property custodian President Coolidge ordered him to investigate alleged irregularities in the conduct of the office.

Investigated in Europe

The inquiry was conducted by Hiram C. Todd, who went to Europe during his investigation, and who secured evidence upon which an indictment charging Miller, King, Smith and several well known German and Swiss bankers with conspiracy to defraud the government was filed. Later district attorney Emory R. Buckner called a new special grand jury for the purpose of reinvestigating the case and it was this grand jury which after listening to testimony for months found the indictment under which Miller and Daugherty were brought to trial today.

Smith committed suicide after the alleged transactions and King died after the investigation was started. During the grand jury investigation Daugherty was cited for contempt of court for refusing to answer questions by the grand jury.

The present indictment makes no mention of the foreign parties to the alleged conspiracy, Buckner choosing to avoid the many delays and obstructions which might be entailed by including the more general charges.
